Radical P&C Transformation
Powered by a Full Digital Suite

Today's customers expect their carriers to offer simple, transparent and flexible products and services, all at the click of a button. What can insurers do to ensure their property & casualty (P&C) solutions meet ever-changing market needs? The answer is quite simple: use innovative and future-proof technologies to create a better customer experience.

Sapiens CoreSuite for Property & Casualty was developed by some of the most innovative minds in the P&C insurance technology industry. Here is what's behind the curtains to make life easier for users and enable growth for carriers via an unparalleled customer experience.

No Code Configuration

At Sapiens, when we say "configurability," we mean business user configurability. The difference between that and IT configurability – the domain of many policy administration suites – is stark. Fortunately, today's best P&C software suites, such as our CoreSuite, offer the capabilities that business-side users need to build and modify products within a compliant, controlled framework, without ever touching a snippet of code.

Speed-to-Market

Competitive companies must react to market demands almost instantaneously, because change is constant. It could come in the form of a regulatory edict, the desire to limit exposure by suspending a particular product, a response to a disaster, an adjustment to the user interface (UI), or switching third-party data service providers.

Whatever the change, Sapiens CoreSuite for Property & Casualty was designed with the future in mind – any future. Whether in the context of the initial implementation, or long after production, the suite empowers carriers to make any necessary change quickly, efficiently and inexpensively.

Disruption-Free Upgrades

What good is modern functionality if it will be obsolete in six months? Software upgrades are a natural part of a vendor product evolution. They should be expected and must be analyzed in terms of both the effort and the disruptions that implementing the upgrade will cost your business. Our unique approach – and truly configurable solution allows for core system upgrades to be performed in only a few hours, without causing costly re-work on the backend and without disrupting existing functionality and capabilities.

A Digital Experience

Sapiens CoreSuite for Property & Casualty is part of the Sapiens P&C Insurance Platform and is fully pre-integrated with Sapiens DigitalSuite. Our DigitalSuite is comprised of the Sapiens AgentConnect and Sapiens CustomerConnect portals and an API composition engine, all of which enables openness, flexibility and connectivity with partners, internal systems or distribution platforms. Sapiens PartnerHub makes third-party technology and insurtech solutions available to insurers and their customers, quickly and efficiently.

Sapiens CoreSuite for Property & Casualty, along with our fully digital business approach and technology, is powered by process automation, which leads to cost savings, enhanced customer service, fewer agent mistakes and fast products launches, among many other advantages. The result is an end-to-end, holistic and seamless digital experience for customers, agents, brokers, customer groups and third-party service providers.
