

Sapiens IllustrationPro

For life insurers, their agents and brokers, one of the most important tools required are those used to provide product illustrations to customers. These illustrations must show policy benefits and values that are easy to understand, even if they span multiple life events, for optimum product choice.

It is critical for Life insurance illustration systems to help explain complex life insurance products in a clear and compelling way. For optimal results, illustration solutions need to seamlessly integrate with online client and application information for up-to-date, accurate details and to provide a fully responsive interface with strong visual capabilities, giving agents the power of choice in how, when and what device to use to prepare the illustrations of life and annuity policies to their customers.
